MEMORANDUM

The Honorable Jay R. Inslee
The Honorable Brad Owen

FROM:  Ellen Evans
Deputy State Treasurer

RE:  June 28, 2016 Scheduled Sale of General Obligation Bonds

Market Update.  Interest rates continue to be exceptionally low.  As of May 26, 2016, tax-exempt interest rates for most maturities approached the lowest levels seen in at least 35 years. Federal Reserve officials have recently suggested that short-term interest rates could be raised in the coming months if the economy and labor markets continue to strengthen.

Upcoming Bond Sale.  The next sale of State of Washington bonds is scheduled for June 28, 2016. Issuance is expected to include $402 million VP GO tax-exempt bonds and $105 million GO taxable bonds. Depending on market conditions, the State also expects to refund approximately $873.7 million general obligation bonds. As of May 2, 2016, refunding savings were estimated at $107.9 million in today’s dollars or $87.6 million on a present value basis. As of this date, debt service savings were projected to reach approximately 12% of the refunded bonds, well in excess of the Committee’s savings thresholds.
